What is the “A Day in the Life” program?

The A Day in the Life program is St. Stephen's Human Service's community engagement program hosted entirely by Community Educators who have first-hand experience with homelessness. The purpose of A Day in the Life is to benefit Community Educators in their healing, growth, and self-expression, as well as platform their experiences and invaluable perspectives as we motivate the public to learn, engage, and advocate on all levels to address the issue of homelessness in their own communities.

What does a virtual session look like?

We equip our participants to become members of a more informed, empathetic, and activated community around the issue of homelessness through combining quality education, community engagement, and advocacy. Below you will see how each of these components come to life during our virtual sessions.

1. Education	2. Community Engagement	3. Advocacy
Historical Background – Present-Day Context. We believe seeing the bigger picture of how this issue has shown up and evolved over time gives participants deeper context as to how and why this issue pervades and impacts our present-day communities. <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Participants become more informed through exploring a “living timeline” of housing instability and homelessness in the United States, from the 1860s through the 21st century.	Understanding and combating homelessness requires social, structural, and relational work. We offer hands-on opportunities for relationship building, because we see that shared experiences cultivate a deeper sense of community. Through connecting real faces and names to the word “homeless,” participants can view the issue of homelessness as far more than a statistic. <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Participants engage in candid conversations with individuals who have personally experienced homelessness in order to gain an idea of their challenges, successes, and unique perspectives.• Participants also hear from service providers who explain their organization’s role in the community and how they approach the work of ending homelessness.	Taking Action Beyond “A Day in the Life.” We want to leave our participants feeling both inspired and prepared to put their newfound knowledge and experience into action. <ul style="list-style-type: none">• We equip our participants to impact this issue positively in their work, school and personal lives.• Participants are also given an overview of more specific ways they can continue their education and stay engaged in the work to end homelessness beyond attending our program.
